Winter Harbor, Maine, February 4, 1914

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE AND THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWN OF WINTER HARBOR

I present herewith my fourth annual report of the condition, progress, and needs of the schools of Winter Harbor:

Eight Grade System

In the past few years there has been much discussion among educators in regard to grade systems for elementary schools. Outside of New England the eight grade plan is generally used while in the New England States until recently the nine grade plan has been common to most towns and cities. The respective merits of these two systems have been much debated and the general belief now seems to be that it is wise to change from the nine grade to the eight grade plan, and that the change should be made where the school year is of sufficient length. In the New England States this change is now taking place in many towns and cities, and in our own state not a few places have already made the change. Our State superintendent in his last report states that the change seems advisable for Maine towns having a school year of thirty-six weeks or more in length.

After carefully considering local conditions it was decided that a change to the eight grade system would be a benefit to the schools of Winter Harbor and the change has accordingly been made the past year, the schools starting on the eight grade system at the beginning of the fall term. In a large system of schools such a change would necessarily cause a considerable disturbance in the school work for a time and not a little time would be needed for readjustment to the new conditions. However, as we have so few schools and only one class in each grade, the change was rather a simple matter for us. In fact from the third grade up, the only change was the grade name, each grade continuing right on with the regular work as though no change had been made, the name of each grade being simply one number lower than formerly for the same stage of advancement and the highest grade before high school being made the eighth. For the first and second grades of last year the change amounted to practically a double promotion for nearly all the pupils, and as these grades were unusually well advanced the change has been brought about with very little difficulty and is now practically complete.

Hereafter pupils entering school and passing regularly from grade to grade each year will be able to complete their common school course in eight years instead of nine as formerly. While a year makes little difference to a pupil in the lower grades, it is a matter of considerable importance to the scholar by the time he graduates from high school, and a year saved in the elementary school course means just that amount of time saved at the end of the high school course.

The principal advantages to the local schools of the eight grade system, are the saving of a year in the elementary school course as just mentioned, and the advantage of fewer grades and classes for the primary and intermediate schools and consequently time for more and better work in these grades. As now arranged the work of the third grade is divided between the primary and intermediate teachers, this grade being registered in the intermediate room which makes the enrollment for this school unusually large. The new plan has worked out very satisfactorily thus far, and we feel confident that the change is a wise one for the local schools.

New Course of Study

The change in grade systems has necessarily caused a revision in the course of study and this has been made out very much along the lines of the old course, but with a slightly larger amount of work for each grade in most of the subjects. Other changes are the elimination of algebra from the common school course, this being properly a high school subject, a change in the outline for history in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee of Eight of the American Historical Association, and a change in the basal system of reading.

As history was formerly taught in the grades the pupils' first knowledge of history began with the discovery of America by Columbus, and he was left to gather for himself whatever knowledge he could of history before that time. By using an elementary course in ancient and mediaeval history in the sixth grade, an excellent background is formed for the formal study of American History in the seventh and eighth grades, and should the pupil fail to attend High school as unfortunately, many do, he would have at least some knowledge of history aside from that of his own country.

In changing the course of study, we took the opportunity to introduce a new basal system in reading, a change which was much needed for while the Rational System was a great improvement over the old method of teaching reading, yet this has in turn been improved upon by several newer systems. Of the numerous new systems we chose the one which seemed best adapted to local requirements. The Progressive Road to Reading, and it is working out in a very satisfactory manner.

Another change which we consider a great improvement in the course of study is in arranging the work in periods of six weeks each, instead of by terms as in the old course of study. By the new plan the year's work is divided into six equal periods regardless of the length of terms. This systematizes the work much better and avoids the extra work and nervous strain brought upon pupils and teachers at the close of terms by examinations, reports, closing exercises, etc. Rank cards are now sent out at the close of each six week period.

National School Record System

A matter which we consider of considerable importance to the schools of this district is the introduction of the National School Record System the past year. This is an index card system for keeping a record of all the school children from the time they enter until they leave school. This system is being established in many places in this state and in fact all over the country, it being the object of superintendents to have a uniform system of school records in every town and city so far as possible. By this system the superintendent and teachers keep on file duplicate records of each pupil; the records including the date and place of the child's birth, the name and occupation of parents or guardian, date of entering school, complete record of attendance in all schools attended, progress through the grades, including rank in each subject in each grade, effort, deportment, health, and in fact a complete school record of the child. The local records are now completed to date and begin with the fall term, 1912. At the present time a great effort is being made to better serve the interests of the individual pupil and thus overcome the principal disadvantage of the graded system. This new system of records cannot fail to be of great assistance to teachers and superintendent in this most important work.

In connection with this system we wish to especially impress upon parents who contemplate a change of residence, the importance of obtaining transfer cards for their children when they leave the local schools. These cards make it possible for school officials to place the pupil in the proper place in the new school without delay, and he is thus enabled to go right on with his school work without waste of time.

High School

The first graduation of Winter Harbor High was carried out in a most successful manner last June in Hammond Hall, the exercises reflecting much credit upon the graduates, the teachers, and the school as a whole, and establishing an excellent record for future graduating classes of this school. As a matter of record the names of the graduates are given in this report as follows: Alta A. Cole, Flossie J. Hancock, Olive F. Tracy, Alice R. Webber, and Hazel B. Weston, class of 1913.

The fall term began with about the same enrollment as last year and with one change in teachers, Mr. Fred Goodwin succeeding Mr. A. S. Adams as principal. No material change has been made in the school work this year, except the adoption of the credit system for students. This is a system used by many High schools and has the advantage of showing the exact standing of the student in his progress towards graduation at any time. By the system adopted for this school ninety credits are required for graduation, a credit representing six weeks' satisfactory work in a subject. Reports are now sent to parents at the close of each six week period, or six times a year instead of three, as formerly, and on each report a statement of the number of credits the student has earned is given in addition to the usual report of rank, attendance, etc. A student passing in each subject of the regular course will earn four credits for each report, or twenty-four credits for the year, and ninety-six for the four years, the minimum number of credits for graduation being ninety.

Music

Special teachers for vocal music are now employed by a large number of the towns of this state, and your attention is called to the advisability of employing such a teacher for the schools of this town. The neighboring towns of Sullivan and Sorrento have been employing such a teacher for some time with satisfactory results and it is very possible that arrangements could be made with this teacher to include the local schools under her instruction. We have investigated the matter of expense and find that the cost of such an arrangement would be about $250.00 a year. The people of Winter Harbor are too well informed to make necessary any lengthy argument in this report as to the value of music in the public schools. It is sufficient to say that music is a part of the regular school course in the schools of nearly every progressive town where such instruction is possible and practical.

Improvements Needed

It has not been customary for us to take up the matter of repairs in our school report in this town, this work being wholly under the charge of the school board, but this year in accordance with the suggestion of our state superintendent, we wish to call your attention to several matters which are of vital importance to the health and welfare of the school children of this town, especially the small children. These are the important matters of heating, ventilating and lighting of schoolrooms. Through the liberality and wisdom of the citizens of this town the schools are provided with very good buildings and equipment with the exception of the ventilation in both buildings, and the heating and lighting of the old building. In the new building there is no proper means of ventilation but a proper system of ventilation could be installed without great expense by means of a coil of steam pipe arranged in a ventilating shaft of proper size. In the old building the present method of heating with two stoves in each room is unsatisfactory and causes great waste of floor space while there is no means of ventilation except by the windows. The most practical solution of this problem would be the installing of ventilating stoves, one for each room. There are several very satisfactory stoves of this kind on the market and as the name suggests, they both heat and ventilate. If stoves of this kind should be used, it would probably be necessary to erect a larger chimney in order to have a ventilating flue of sufficient size. In regard to the lighting of the old building, the windows are small, low and improperly placed, so that on short cloudy days the rooms are very dark in the afternoon. A new arrangement of windows is necessary to remedy this defect. An estimate of the cost of these improvements will be given at town meeting.

School Accounts, Statistics, Etc.

In order to make our report conform to the arrangement of a uniform school report recommended for Maine towns the arrangement of this report is changed from former years, the school accounts and school statistics to which your attention is called following the general report. When a school building is occupied by both a High school and a common school the law now requires the expense of maintaining the building to be divided between the High school and the common school accounts, hence the amount credited to the common school account by the High school account
